MVC application I have a method that executes asynchronously in one actor (let's call it A). This method might use another actor (B) inside a different class. I want to "send a message" from A back to B so that B can send some information back. But the problem is that the messages don't seem to be being propagated through to B even though I can see it happening when B is called inside A. Instead, when the debugger hits B, the callstack is just in the middle of A and then B, and the application hangs. Here's the code for A (the other class is similar, except that the method A is inside a different class):

static public void
RunOnDatabase(object value) {
// this method is executed
asynchronously if(value!=null)
{ // do the DB stuff long runningTime =
Stopwatch.StartNew(); FetchDetails(value); long fetchTime =

Stopwatch.ElapsedMilliseconds; Console.WriteLine("The fetch is done in {0}ms", fetchTime.ToString()); // read
from DB _details = ReadFromDb(value);
if(!_details.HasErrors) { ProcessDetails(_details);
