I would like to move the stock from another country to my country with out using a bank, but still sell the stock at the market price. I don't understand how this is possible without using a bank. A: It's important to note that even with banks there is no guarantee that you can actually sell that stock to anyone else at that price, and you can't actually get the stock back in their country without a bank. The fundamental concept is that the market exchange is based on the belief that the prices of stocks are based on supply and demand. If you don't have a buyer at a particular price, the price goes up until a person or group of people are willing to pay that price. If you have no seller at that price, the price goes down until a group of people are willing to sell for that price. Because of this fundamental concept, you generally need a
